Give to a local child in need with Tony's Metro Magic 2019

Our 10th annual toy drive, Tony's Metro Magic, has kicked off for the 2019 holiday season! Here's how you can bring cheer to local kids this year.

MORGAN ROUSSEAU
morgan@metro.us

We are so grateful for our loyal readers, and the kindness they've shown over the years by participating in our annual holiday toy drive, Tony's Metro Magic. We hope to keep the holiday cheer going strong this year, as we mark the toy drive's 10th anniversary.

Our late Editor-in-Chief Tony Metcalf oversaw the project for more than four years before his passing in 2013. Since then, Metro has continued the tradition of Tony's Metro Magic as a way to bring joy to underprivileged kids in our community.

This year's toy drive runs through mid-December to allow time for items to be distributed before the holidays. Metro has created a wish list that readers can access by going to metro.us/magic. Gifts range from $3.99 and up. Diapers, coats, bedding and other essential items are also available for purchase.

This year, items will be directly delivered to the local charities we've partnered with in our Metro cities (New York, Boston and Philadelphia). For those donating in New York, items will go directly to the Coalition For The Homeless, then distributed to local children. Boston's Heading Home Inc. will receive the items, and Philadelphia's donations will go to the

"Each year we support over 700 children in our shelter programs." - Heading Home, Boston

If you wish to donate, you may visit our website, choose items and pay online using Target's secure payment system. Your gifts, along with your name attached, will be automatically delivered to the charities' collection locations.

"The magic and the joy that toy donations bring to our families in need here at Heading Home during such a critical time of year is indescribable," said Martha Buckley, Director of Development for Heading Home. "Each year we support over 700 children in our shelter programs and the ability to provide each of them with the dignity of special, new holiday gifts is a reminder to them and their families that there is a community of people around them who see them and who care. The lasting impact of your generosity extends far beyond the holiday season and brings so much joy to local families in need. Heading Home sincerely thanks all of you for the many years of support each holiday season!"

Metro thanks readers in advance for remembering children who will spend the holidays in shelters or who may not have presents to open. Even one small gift can make a big difference in a child's holiday season.

To donate in Boston visit tgt.gifts/metro-boston-2019. Please note that the deadline to donate to the Boston charity is Dec. 6.

Former New York Mayor Bloomberg enters 2020 Democratic presidential race

Bloomberg will likely offer moderate policies.

Billionaire businessman Michael Bloomberg, the former mayor of New York City, jumped into the U.S. presidential race on Sunday, adding another moderate voice to a crowded field of Democratic contenders seeking to face Republican President Donald Trump in the November 2020 election.

The move represents an about-face for Bloomberg, 77, who had said in March that he would not make a run for the White House.

"I'm running for president to defeat Donald Trump and rebuild America. We cannot afford four more years of President Trump's reckless and unethical actions," Bloomberg, who founded prominent media company Bloomberg LP and serves as its chief executive, said in a statement on his campaign website.

Ranked by Forbes as the eighth-richest American with an estimated worth of $53.4 billion, Bloomberg will have the advantage of being able to self-finance his campaign and pour millions of dollars into advertising and hiring staff.

Bloomberg's candidacy presents a late challenge to the pack of Democratic contenders near the top in opinion polls - fellow centrists Joe Biden, the former U.S. vice president, and Pete Buttigieg, the mayor of South Bend, Indiana, and prominent liberal U.S. Senators Elizabeth Warren and Bernie Sanders.

Bloomberg has been critical of anti-Wall Street crusader Warren and her plan to tax the super wealthy to pay for programs ranging from universal healthcare to free college tuition. He will compete with Biden and Buttigieg to become the moderate alternative to the liberal agendas of Warren and Sanders.

He has won allies in the party with his advocacy and philanthropy on climate change and in fighting gun violence, pouring millions into groups pushing for more restrictive gun laws. Bloomberg served as mayor of New York, the largest U.S. city, from 2002 to 2013.

Bloomberg had filed paperwork on Thursday with the U.S. Federal Election Commission to run for president. He already had filed paperwork to be eligible for the Democratic primary in Alabama and four other states with early deadlines for ballot qualification.

He announced earlier in November a $100 million online ad campaign targeting Trump in four battleground states. The advertising blitz drew criticism from some rival Democratic candidates.

$100M

Bloomberg announced earlier in November a $100 million online ad campaign targeting Trump in four battleground states. The advertising blitz drew criticism from some rival Democratic candidates.

"I don't have that money ... but I have actually gotten things done in the gridlock of Washington," U.S. Senator Amy Klobuchar said on ABC's "This Week" program on Sunday.

Bloomberg will face significant disadvantages because of his late start, which means he will be playing catch-up with rivals who have been putting together campaign staffs for months ahead of the state-by-state battle for the Democratic nomination.

To counter that, he plans to pursue the unorthodox strategy of skipping the four states with early nominating contests in February, beginning on Feb. 3 in Iowa, and focus primarily on the states that hold primaries and caucuses starting on so-called Super Tuesday on March 3.

No winning presidential contender has ever pursued a similar strategy.

Bloomberg already has come under fire from liberal critics who say he would be the wrong choice for a Democratic Party turning against corporate money in politics and dedicated to ending income inequality in America. REUTERS

An End of an Era for Viagra, But Just the Beginning for This New Sex Pill

As the last patents on the big pharma's 'little blue pill' runs out, interest in finding new, natural remedies has been renewed – researchers think they've found the one which stands to change everything.

For Immediate Release

US – Are we witnessing the end of an era for Viagra?

Since the famous "little blue pill" exploded on the market in 1998, becoming the fastest selling drug in history, it has made vast sums marketing it to sexually frustrated men all over the world.

Within three months of its launch, Viagra had already earned $400m, and over the past two decades, it has consistently generated annual sales to the tune of $1.8bn.

However, this will soon come to an end, as in 2020, as the remaining patents on Viagra expire for good.

A whole host of generic versions have emerged in the past six years, often in quirky forms such as mint strips or breath sprays, as big pharma's grip on the rights to the drug has slowly loosened.

Soon, these are expected to flood the market, as manufacturers jostle for a slice of the pie.

But while virtually everyone is focused on these generics, savvy consumers are focused on something much different.

And although it's natural, its performance has researchers far more impressed.

For the first time in a while, America has a new sex pill.

A New Alternative for Sexually Frustrated Men

The new pill called Vesele is part of a new class of performance enhancers for men.

It works on the body and mind, triggering arousal and encouraging firmer and harder erections.

Formulated with a special compound known as an "accelerator", Vesele can transport its active ingredients faster and more efficiently into the blood stream, where it begins to work its magic.

The patented ingredient blend initiates a process known as vasodilation, which causes arteries and vessels throughout the body to expand. This allows blood to flow directly to penis and genitals, resulting in harder erections which last longer.

But what makes Vesele so remarkable, and what these other sex pills can't do, is that also directs a small portion of this blood flow to the brain, which creates feelings of intense arousal. In laymen's terms, users become incredibly excited and turned on.

This is why the makers of Vesele say their pill has worked so effectively in Clinical Use Survey Trials (CUST). It stimulates the two most important organs for great sex, the penis and the brain.

The Brain Erection Connection

Until now, medical researchers did not fully understand the brain-erection connection. It has now been made clear with Vesele. When both are supplied with a constant blood flow, men are harder and firmer for longer...and have unbelievable sex drives.

"Most of the research and treatment methods for men's sexual failures have focused on physiological factors and have neglected the emotional ones. For the leading sex drugs to work, like Cialis and Viagra, you need visual stimulation" explains Dr. Stephen Klayman, spokesperson for Vesele.

"And although they work for some men, the majority experience absolutely no fulfillment during sex."

According to research published by the National Institute of Health, 50% of men taking these drugs stop responding or can't tolerate their side effects... and on top of that they spend $50 per pill and it doesn't even work half the time.

This is what makes Vesele so different and effective. It floods the blood stream with key ingredients which cause arteries all over the body to expand. The patented accelerator speeds up this process even more.

The result is a rush of blood flow to the penis and brain, helping to create an impressive erection and a surging desire for sex. Often, this is all men need to get going. And when taken regularly, many men say they are energized and aroused all day."

Great Sex At Any Age

With the conclusion of their latest human clinical use survey trial, Dr. Klayman and his team are now offering Vesele in the US. And regardless of the market, its sales are exploding.

Men across the country are eager to get their hands on the new pill and according to the research, they should be.

In the trial above, as compared to baseline, men taking Vesele saw a staggering 85% improvement in hardness over a four-month period. They also stayed harder for longer - two times longer to be exact.

These same men also experienced an astounding 82% increase in the desire for sex (libido/sex drive) and an even greater improvement in overall satisfaction and ability to satisfy their partners.

Many men taking Vesele described feeling horny and aroused through the day. The anticipation before sex was amazing. They were also easily turned on. Their moods were more upbeat and positive, too.

Faster Absorption into the Blood Stream

Vesele is made up of three specialized ingredients: two extra strength vasodilators and a patented absorption enhancer often called an accelerator. According to an enormous amount of clinical data, each is very safe.

They are even listed by the FDA as GRAS ingredients.

Research shows that with age, many men lose their desire and interest in sex. They also struggle to produce an erection firm enough for penetration.

And although there are many theories as to why this happens (including a loss in testosterone) one thing is certain, inadequate blood flow is virtually always to blame. That's why sex drug manufacturers focus on blood flow, it makes you hard so you can have sex.

But what's more surprising, and what these manufacturers have failed to consider, is that lack of blood flow can also kill your sex drive.

That's because blood supplies the brain with energy. This energy is required for creating the America's New Sex Pill? Researchers seem to think so. Vesele is a new pill that cost just $1 a dose does not require a prescription. It works on both body and mind to increase arousal and hardness.

brainwaves that make you feel aroused and excited.

Studies show the Vesele stimulates the entire cardiovascular system, including the arteries that lead to both the brain and penis whereas other sex pills focus only on the erection.

The extreme concentration of the ingredients combined with the accelerator ensures that this process starts quickly.

The sexual benefits of Vesele are also multiplied as its ingredients build up in the system over time. This is why many men take it every single day.

Recent Studies Show Positive Effects on Women

"In our most recent study, women taking Vesele saw a stunning 52% improvement in arousal and sex drive. Perhaps more impressive, they also experienced a 57% improvement in lubrication.

You can imagine why some couples are taking Vesele together. Everything feels better. Everything works better. Everyone performs better. It's truly amazing."

A New Frontier of Non-Prescription Sex Pills

With daily use, Vesele is helping men (and women) restore failing sex lives and overcome sexual let downs without side effect or expense.

Through a patented absorption enhancer, the Vesele formula hits the bloodstream quickly, resulting in phenomenal improvements in erection firmness and hardness. By boosting blood flow to the brain, users also experience sexual urges and arousal they often haven't felt in years.

Where to Find Vesele

This is the official release of Vesele in Massachusetts. As such, the company is offering a special discounted supply to any reader who calls within the next 48 hours.

A special hotline number and discounted pricing has been created for all Massachusetts residents. Discounts will be available starting today at 6:00AM and will automatically be applied to all callers.

Your Toll-Free Hotline number is 1-800-608-2070 and will only be open for the next 48 hours. Only a limited discounted supply of Vesele is currently available in your region.

THESE STATEMENTS HAVE NOT BEEN EVALUATED BY THE U.S. FOOD AND DRUG ADMINISTRATION. THIS PRODUCT IS NOT INTENDED TO DIAGNOSE, TREAT, CURE OR PREVENT ANY DISEASE. RESULTS NOT TYPICAL.

Director Marielle Heller and journalist Tom Junod talk new film "A Beautiful Day in the Neighborhood."

MOLLY GIVEN
Molly.Given@metro.us

The number one question I've been asked when I mention to people that I've seen the new film, "A Beautiful Day in the Neighborhood," is "What is it about?" People want to know is the movie about Mister Rogers' life? His show? A dark secret perhaps? Most are surprised when I shake my head — it does showcase all of that (minus the dark secret of course), but it's about so much more than one man; it's about the impact he made on those around him.

Marielle Heller and Tom Hanks. LACY TERRELL

So no, "A Beautiful Day in the Neighborhood" is not all about Fred Rogers' life, but there is truly no better way to tell a story about such an incredibly astonishing person than by showing what he did to get that reputation.

The new film directed by Marielle Heller starring Tom Hanks was inspired by the 1998 Esquire article by Tom Junod, "Can You Say...Hero?" and the real-life friendship between the two men. At the time, Junod was working as a hard-hitting journalist hunting down a bit more, let's say, dark sorts of characters and was ultimately surprised when his editors assigned him to the soft-spoken man on TV who played with puppets and taught children about kindness.

"I didn't know what to think. In my mind, he was someone like Captain Kangaroo or even this character that was parodied in skits on 'Saturday Night Live.' Later on, he became someone people loved, a hero. I didn't know at first what I was going to be writing, to me, a hero wore a cape or was a war veteran from Vietnam. So when I was going to meet this person who was so admired I didn't know what I was going to get," says Junod.

The story follows a character similar to Junod, Lloyd Vogel, a journalist sent by his editors at Esquire to profile Mister Rogers for their 'Hero Issue.' Lloyd, dealing with his own set of problems stemming from a troublesome childhood, is openly reluctant about the whole ordeal.

When the script was first floating around Tinsel Town, producers wanted no one else to play Fred Rogers than Tom Hanks — but the Oscar-winning actor was not as keen on the project. Then Marielle Heller signed on and everything changed.

"He and I had been looking for a project to do together for a long time," says Heller. "He's been a fan of mine since 'The Diary of a Teenage Girl' and we had wanted to work together. I think he knew if I was doing this project it wasn't going to be a simple biopic, it had to have something more going on. I explained to him that I wasn't interested in an imitation and I felt like we could really do something very special with this movie that had the potential to really touch people's hearts in a deep way. I also explained to him I didn't want a sketch version of Mister Rogers, I wanted him to just get the essence right. So he read the script with that in mind and he signed on right away."

Getting the essence right is exactly what Hanks does, you don't need any CGI or crazy make-up to help get the appearance of Fred Rogers. That came from many discussions with Heller and hours upon hours worth of watching footage of Fred Rogers — it's truly all in his behaviors and ability to connect with people. As we see in the movie, Lloyd as a journalist is about as cynical as you can get. Even in his first few meetings with Mister Rogers on the set of his show, and later on in even more personal settings, the reporter does not seem to have the patience for the kind nature and almost therapeutic answers Rogers gives when Lloyd grills him about his life. In fact, it's almost as if the interview on screen is in reverse.

"Fred did have superpowers," says Junod. "He worked really hard at living a life where he could guide others. One of Fred's skills was to be able to see inside people, find out what they needed and give it to them. He did that with me. For multiple reasons at that time, I had lost trust in myself — Fred trusted me. I think he saw something in me, and that process hasn't ended. I've spent the past few months dedicating myself to talking about this movie because I think in some ways, Fred is still asking something from me."

The film does take Mister Rogers fans down memory lane. The scenes that show the inside of his studio is almost exactly the way it looked when the show was on air decades ago. That was an important aspect to Marielle Heller.

"We hired these incredible puppet makers from 'Sesame Street' to recreate the puppets perfectly. The same with the set, we got the original blueprints and were able to recreate the set perfectly from the fabrics of the curtains to the couch — it just had to feel right, and when you saw it, you had to step back in time," says Heller.

"A Beautiful Day in the Neighborhood" is in theaters now.

A pop-up goes permanent at Breadboard Bakery

The once sleepy town of Arlington is undergoing a renaissance as of late, and — much to the delight of carb-loving residents — there has been an unlikely influx of bakeries leading the charge. Within the past six months, Mass Hole Donuts and Butternut Bakehouse have both set up shop in town and the Arlington Bakery reopened after an ownership change, joining mainstays like Quebrada and Cookie Time. Now, the new kid on the block, Breadboard Bakery, is bringing artisan pastries, baguettes, cake and breakfast treats into the fold.

At the helm is Texas native Daisy Chow, a seasoned veteran on the Boston baking scene with more than two decades of experience at establishments like Clear Flour Bread, Maison Robert and Ames Street Deli.

Breadboard, which is Chow's first brick-and-mortar, actually began as a pop-up concept at Cutty's deli in Brookline Village. After gaining a loyal local following and receiving more than a few requests to open her own space, she located the perfect place to make that dream a reality: the former Commune Kitchen space in East Arlington. It wasn't all smooth sailing, though; there were still renovations to be made and specialty equipment to be purchased before the storefront was ready for prime time.

Fortunately, the baker's longtime supporters were more than happy to help and donated nearly $34,000 via Kickstarter to cover these costs, allowing Breadboard to finally open for business on Tuesday of this week. "I'm looking forward to having my own space to bake after working for others and doing pop-ups the last few years," Chow said.

While as the name suggests, the bakery's focus is on gourmet breads like sourdough and whole-grain Danish rye, variety is the spice of Breadboard's offerings. "I'm excited to work on fun, technical baking projects, but also some of my favorite everyday treats," she shared. One of these treats is kolache, a Central European pastry and Texas breakfast staple that features fluffy dough and a center filled with fruit, cream cheese and sometimes even savory toppings like bacon and eggs. Those with a sweet tooth can also look forward to rich, chocolatey "wacky cake," cinnamon rolls, muffins, cookies and the occasional mini-pie or cake. And of course, there will be plenty of drip coffee to wash it all down.

To start, Breadboard will be open from 7 a.m. to 3 p.m., Tuesday through Sunday. "Arlington has been really welcoming through my set up of the space," Chow remarked. "I'm happy to open the doors to the neighborhood and finally say hello to everyone."

Genetic analysis:
A tool beyond
science fiction

ISTOCK

When talking about genetics and science, eugenics immediately comes to mind. But far from that, here are some examples of how what is sought is to change the spectrum of diseases and early detection.

LUZ LANCHEROS MWN

The Human Genome Project began in 1990 and only in 2016 was its sequence completed. This included identifying and cataloging the genes that made up the DNA of a human being, which is composed of between 22 and 25 thousand different genes. However, after 29 years and with headline controversies – such as embryo editing with CRISPR technology – there is an increase in genome sequencing services that are offered for early diagnoses that speed up procedures regarding health treatments. In fact, in the last two years, according to the consultancy agency Mordor Intelligence, its market has grown. A study cited by them and published by NCBI as of August 2017 revealed 75k genetic tests available in the market, with approximately 10k unique tests with diverse test categories offered by each company: these range from prenatal to forensic to diagnostic, among others. The business is profitable: according to the latest figures, the global market was valued at $7B and by 2025 is expected to reach $17B according to a report by the Allied Market Research consultancy in 2019.

Now, far from genome editing and all the bioethical, political and social debate implied, several companies focus on generating solutions to improve diagnostic and prevention conditions.

"What we do is sequence 100 percent of people's DNA. The reason we had not done it before is because of the amount of data being handled and the price. The first one cost 3 billion dollars. Five years ago, it cost between 15 and 20 thousand dollars, and today it costs less than 2 thousand dollars. The cost of sequencing has significantly decreased. And the other is the data that is now offered to people: before they only gave a report of response to certain foods and things that are not really useful. Nowadays, thanks to artificial intelligence, data storage and scientific evidence, they can give us a report with enormous solidity in the clinical side. Today, we have reports for healthy people and for people with diseases and analysis is made on that specific condition. For healthy people we give a report with more than a thousand conditions that you can develop which is useful to know what medications and what treatments to follow with specific conditions ranging from cancer to depression," explains Sebastián Robledos, director at Veritas Latin America, the first company to offer these genetic services and created by Dr. George Church, who participated in the Human Genome Project.

Now, these services range from $100 to $2k and up, per the average taken by the United States National Library of Medicine. This also depends on the nature of the test.

"We, in our reports, give information on what has been discovered so far," emphasizes Robledos. "What is analyzed does not change much throughout life and that's great, because that is how we identify new patterns and sequences. What we give is actionable information and in the case of babies, in the Newborn DNA Studio, information for early onset diseases, among other reports."

Some health insurances cover a certain percentage, but it gets complicated in places with less access to equitable health systems. That is the biggest problem, according to the WHO. That is why some companies work with partners. They hope these services can be accessible, in coming years to a wider population and provide reliable information. It is recommended to have a medical consultation before having any tests done.

For now, not everyone can access these services, although they are available to anyone who can pay for them according to their own needs and capabilities. But they are already showing up as an option for the future to save time and money for health systems that put less obstacles in their procedures and guarantee more accurate diagnoses going forward.

MATT BURKE

For the second straight week the Patriots had to grind out a game against an NFC East opponent, but all that matters for Bill Belichick and crew is the checkmark in the win column at the end of the day.

The Pats edged the Cowboys 13-9 Sunday at Gillette Stadium and moved to 10-1 on the season.

Playing in severely wet conditions, the Patriots only managed to score one touchdown the entire game as rookie N'Keal Harry hauled in the first TD of his career on a 10-yard pass from Tom Brady.

Brady again had an overall performance that resembled those from early in his New England career as he finished the game having completed 17-of-37 passes for 190 yards. TB12 registered the one TD pass to Harry and was not picked off.

The Patriots defense was again stout but showed some cracks by allowing Dallas running back Ezekiel Elliott to scamper for 86 yards on 21 carries.

Dallas was gaining momentum on offense late in the game and got into the New England red zone but the Pats defense ultimately held them to another field goal with just over six minutes remaining. The Cowboys were never able to again get down to that end of the field.

It wasn't all bad for the Patriots offense as Brady hooked up with Jakobi Meyers for a big first down pick-up early in the fourth quarter. The Meyers grab set up a 42-yard field goal by Nick Folk.

Brady also found Julian Edelman in the clutch for a huge first down, a 21-yard gain to get the Pats into Dallas territory with 4:16 left in the fourth.

Edelman finished with a game-high 93 yards receiving on eight catches.

Sony Michel turned in the best game of his 2019 season as he ran for 85 yards on 20 carries.

The Patriots will look to move to 11-1 next Sunday night at Houston (7-4).

Baltimore lurking

The Patriots will be keeping a close eye on tonight's Ravens at Rams game in Los Angeles (8:15 p.m., ESPN) with Baltimore (8-2) right behind the Pats in the AFC standings.

The Ravens are steamrolling the competition right now as they've ripped off six straight wins, including victories over the Seahawks (30-16), Patriots (37-20) and Texans (41-7). The blasting of the Texans eight days ago was particularly impressive as the Baltimore defense looked elite. The narrative surrounding the Ravens earlier in the year was that if you could simply contain Lamar Jackson, you would be well on your way to victory. Jackson has continued his ridiculous level of play (four TD passes and 79 yards rushing against Houston last week), but now Ravens have allowed an average of just 16 points per game since the start of October.

On the flip side, the Rams have been one of the more disappointing teams in the league since their Super Bowl run a year ago. Their offense has been in a huge funk, as they are averaging just 17.6 points per game in their past three games. Jared Goff has regressed to Trubisky-esque levels as Sean McVay only trusted his QB to throw the ball 18 times last week against the Bears.

The only way the Rams will be able to hang against the Ravens is if Todd Gurley has another vintage outing. McVay let the old Cadillac out of the garage last week in the 17-7 win over Chicago, as Gurley ran the ball a season-high 25 times for 97 yards.

L.A. cannot afford to lose many more games the rest of the season if they hope to return to the postseason, so expect McVay to pound the ball with Gurley again.

Aries A quick decision will change your outlook and immediate future. A financial or professional gain is within reach. Secrets are best kept. Help someone who depends on you.

Taurus Concentrate on whatever brings you joy. If you take the initiative to get things done, you will not be disappointed with the results. If you attend social events, creative ideas will develop.

Gemini Don't fear change. Give your dreams and goals a chance to flourish. Stop putting things off and start doing what you know in your heart is best for you.

Cancer You can achieve plenty if you are diligent and straightforward. The more open you are, the easier it will be to clear up unfinished business and pending problems. Love is in the air.

Leo Not everyone has your best interest at heart. Be careful whom you trust with your secrets. Personal problems will surface if you are too demanding. Diplomacy and patience will pay off.

Virgo Travel should be on your agenda. You will discover something about your past that will change your direction. The information you receive will encourage you to try something new.

Libra Make a choice and turn a negative into a positive. Refuse to let anyone cloud your vision or interfere with your decision. Focus on work and financial gains.

Scorpio Your determination to get your way and to get things done will help you accelerate your plans. As long as you are humble and gracious, your actions will succeed.

Sagittarius A change someone makes will disrupt your life. Dealings with institutions or government agencies will be met with frustrating delays, but the end result will be to your benefit.

Capricorn A partnership looks promising. If you discuss your intentions, it will lead to an excellent deal. Prosperity is apparent, and a better relationship is evident. Romance will be overpowering.

Aquarius Don't believe or get involved in rumors. Making decisions based on assumptions will lead you down a slippery slope. Focus on entertainment, relaxation and personal growth.

Pisces You will discover valuable information if you strive to find out the truth. Social events will lead to romance. Develop a creative interest and look at the possibilities. EUGENIA IAST
